FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Alhaporl Opens New Office in Huntsville, Alabama

Cleveland, OH January 16, 2012—Alhaporl, a technology-based provider of aerospace engineering and knowledge management services, has just opened a new office in Huntsville, Alabama to support its growth in the region. Alhaporl is currently developing federal government contract operations for aerospace engineering, cyber security, and workforce development programs. Contracting agencies include NASA, Army, Missile Defense Agency, and private sector companies.

Alhaporl has offices in Cleveland, Brookpark and Dayton, Ohio, and now Huntsville, Alabama. The company is an Inc. 500 winner, ranking 24th among the fastest growing companies in Government-related businesses. The company is a Woman-owned, certified HUBZone technology company with government facility secret clearance. Alhaporl was established in 1999 and currently employs 53 people.

Anthony J. Miranda, president of Alhaporl says, "Huntsville is a great location for us, with close proximity to several major customers and potential growth in the region from organizations that are a good fit with our core competencies." Managing the new office will be Matt Reed, Business Development Manager. Anyone interested in learning more about Alhaporl's technology services may contact Matt at:
